Introducing our new Rector

I have been asked to write a few words about myself as way of introduction as the new Rector of Farleigh, Wield and Candover.

I am pleased to say that in coming to this post I will be returning to rural life. I was brought up in the Welsh mountains and lived in North Shropshire. I have always enjoyed exploring the countryside, whether it be helping local farming friends ploughing fields, keeping cade lambs in front of the log burner, or using a cherry picker to pick sloes. All the fun things you can get up to in the countryside as a young adult. Now, I enjoy and appreciate the peace and tranquillity of walking and just being in the midst of God's wonderful creation.

It came as quite a shock to receive an unexpected call to ministry. A call to become a priest, to teach, administer the rites of the Church, and to help people and communities bring their whole lives, in joy, sorrow, and day to day, before God.

Quite naturally this was different from my own plans, and I did my very best to ignore it for as long as I could, but I found that it is hard to say no to God.

During the Discernment Process of the Church of England I was asked by my then Archdeacon to look at supporting people in rural areas, especially around domestic abuse. I had the knowledge of living in an isolated area which I was able to put into action in designing a project that the church would lead but involved a variety of outside agencies such as the police force, social care, etc. It showed the importance of the church and the difference it can make to people's lives and especially in rural areas.

I then went on to train at Cranmer Hall in Durham, a theological college teaching Mission, Ministry and Theology. Training allowed me to work in new places, such as the prison service, and Estate Ministry in Middlesbrough. I was also lucky to spend time on an Army Chaplaincy course, and living with the Sisters of the Order of the Holy Paraclete in Whitby.

I was Ordained in 2022 in Lichfield Cathedral and have been serving my Curacy in the Benefice of Bradwell and Porthill, large urban deprived areas in the middle of Newcastle under Lyme. I have enjoyed being a part of life in the parishes, local schools and community groups but I am looking forward to returning to a rural parish.

I am looking forward to being Installed as Rector of Farleigh, Wield and Candover on Monday 15th September at 7.30pm at St. John the Evangelist, Northington and getting to know the churches, villages, schools and people of the Benefice.

I will hope to meet with you all in the near future. My e-mail address is: rev.jenn4@gmail.com, and I am always interested to hear from you.

Please pray for me in the coming months, as I will pray for you all.

Jackies County Corner

Summer is a time of village fetes, and they abound in this division! Thank you if you host or helped at a stall and thank you too if you went to support a good cause whilst having an enjoyable afternoon.

Fetes are good for so many reasons. As well as fund raising, they bring people together, with stalls and games to enjoy, bring a sense of community and it is a good family occasion. Our local PCSO's also attended several fetes on very hot afternoons: thanks gentlemen! If like me you bought a piece of bric a brac, or several children's books from each one, we all realise they are great for recycling too.

Talking of recycling, do you have a black bin, or if in a flat, a blue bin for glass? Maybe your bin has been lost or broken? Or do you take your extra bottles to a bottle bank? The bottle banks can be noisy for neighbours and popular banks can be busy places. I am concerned for residents who are consistently woken by the sound of bottles crashing into the bins.

So, I am asking you to think of others as you recycle, please: -

- If you use a bottle bank, particularly the multi bin sites, please only use at sociable hours, from 8am to 8pm.
- After a big sports event or a hot weekend, and if the bins are unexpectedly full, please take your bottles home again and report the full bin to me or on the 'Winchester app'.
- If you don't have a bottle bin for your home, please contact me or Clare Pinniger cpinniger@winchester.gov.uk

Local Government reorganisation continues but Hampshire's solution to the puzzle is different from the solution offered by most of the districts. This subject is confusing for residents enough, without a difference of opinion between layers of local government. Can I assure you that debating this subject doesn't take time away from my purpose to represent you, but I am always keen to hear your views on the subject. To see the picture from your viewpoint is always informative. Thanks for all your comments so far.

Walking with Wildlife, Robert Bryant

Butterflies, butterflies and even more butterflies have enlivened many of our walks during this long hot summer. One sunny morning while visiting the Woodland Trust's reserve at Home Farm, Burkham near Bradley, we had barely set off from the carpark along the waymarked white trail, when we almost stepped on a large butterfly resting on the shadowy path ahead. Dusky-brown with white wing bars, it seemed to be a white admiral foraging for salts – until it turned towards the light and those wings flashed and shimmered with a purple sheen. We had met our first purple emperor of the season!

Heading on through the woodlands, we emerged into the grassland savannah of Bishop's Common, entering a butterfly world of marbled whites and ringlets fluttering through the tall grasses. Meadow browns and all the whites, both large, small and green veined, bounced around in the breeze, while small skippers, orange and gold, busily dipped and dived. A flicker of red revealed a passing cinnabar moth, day flying. Comma butterflies, with their raggedy wing profiles, were hiding in plain sight on clumps of wayside brambles, until they suddenly flicked open their wings to bask in the sunlight.

With a backdrop of woodland birdsong including spirited performances from a song thrush, we listened to a medley of blackbird and robin calls, were startled by the explosive trills from wrens, and strained to hear the distant mewing call of a buzzard. Whitethroats, a summer visitor, rasped away, calling from deep cover in the bramble banks.

Strolling on we found an impressive display of pyramidal orchids – a colony of a dozen or more rosy-pink cones of close-packed flowers – glowing from the grassy mead. According to the Harrap's Field Guide to Orchids, the pyramidal respond well to the mild wet winters and hot dry summers of recent years.

Our walk eventually took us onwards and upwards to explore the intriguing high copse above Tickley Common, where we chanced upon the pinky-purple spires of another orchid, the common fragrant, discreetly tucked away either side of the grassy path.

Swarraton and Northington WI

MONTHLY NEWSLETTER - July 2025

The formal and financial part of the monthly meeting was brief and efficient,

Outing to Chavenage House

The outing to Chavenage House was very enjoyable and well organised. James Loswsley-Williams led our group from room to room and gave such an interesting talk about the history of the house and its more recent use for well-known TV programmes and films. We were served a delicious home cooked lunch in the ballroom and had the chance to take in the wonderful view from the gardens. There was a well-timed stop in Tetbury on the way home and the chance to visit the Highgrove shop for some gift buying.

Summer Lunch

The planning for the annual Summer Lunch on Thursday 17th July to be held at Easton Village Hall at 12 for 12.30, has been finalised. The tickets are £20 for members and guests to include a glass of fizz or soft drink on arrival and bring your own drink to enjoy with your meal. The Committee will organise the main course of the meal, some members have offered to make a dessert, and the cost can be reimbursed. Please bring some cash for the raffle and there will be a table quiz with a prize for the winner. There is plenty of parking at Easton and fingers crossed for continuing good weather! If any tickets have not been paid for yet could this be submitted as soon as possible to Carole by BACs, cash or cheque.

Group Quiz

A team from our WI attended the first round of the group quiz at Bishops Sutton on the 24th June We had an enjoyable time, we didn't win but it was a sociable and enjoyable evening.

There being no further business the speaker for the meeting was introduced, Hilary Bowen gave an interesting and intriguing talk and demonstration about the art of Silver Clay Jewellery. She is a member of the Wessex Guild of Craftmen and offers private courses at her home. She had many items of jewellery for sale and some members made purchases.

Candover Valley Gardening Club

In July we had a very enjoyable summer garden party with plenty of lovely food, a fun quiz and a special raffle of local goodies. First prize was a bottle of the delicious Candover Brook wine.

As happens sometimes, not too frequently I'm pleased to say, our visit to the Watercress Farm in Alresford was cancelled due to a sewage spillage at the farm. Needless to say, there is a lot of clearing up to do. However, at short notice were able to organise a garden visit to a garden at Binstead.

In August, we are looking forward to a visit to Longstock to see their collection of Buddleias. Peter Moore will show us around and we will have an opportunity beforehand to visit the nursery or have refreshments in their café.

Our indoor meetings are held at 7.30pm in Preston Candover Village Hall on the third Thursday of the month from September to April. In the summer months we visit some beautiful gardens. If you would like to join us at any time, guests are very welcome for a small fee and we always welcome new members for an annual subscription of only £15 per person.

A Tail-Wagging Success: Valley Pet Service at St Peter's Church, Brown Candover

Brown Candover, 29th June, 2025 — The sun shone in joyful welcome over the picture-perfect cricket pitch and church as we gathered for the special Pet Service at St Peter's Church — a blessing of our most loyal companions.

In what has become a cherished village tradition, the annual Pet Service was held on 29th June, drawing a delightful congregation of animals and their owners.

Plenty of dogs (lots of Labradors!) joined a beautiful Bernese Mountain dog, a wooden elephant and a stuffed hippo. The hippo represented a real hippo which is sponsored in its natural environment by its owner; the story behind the wooden elephant has yet to be revealed. Their humans gathered too - some curious, some excitable, and all remarkably well-behaved.

Julian Gibbons led the service with wonderful stories of animals from his own childhood. Apparently, anyone wanting to discourage their children from developing an expensive interest in riding, should start by buying a donkey – it put the Gibbons children off!

Prayers were said and thanks were given for all the animals in our lives – not just our pets, but our service animals too – and for those who look after our animals (someone might have prayed for cheaper vet bills!).

After the service we gathered for cups of tea and coffee, delicious chocolate brownies and British strawberries. St Peter's will hold another pet service next year and judging by the turnout — and the tails — it's sure to be another 'pawsitively' joyful day.

Young Hands, Big Impact – Celebrating Our Local Youth Workers

In honour of International Youth Day – August 11th.

As International Youth Day approaches, we are proud to recognize the positive contributions of our local youth in the Candover Valley.

Each weekend and throughout school holidays, a dedicated team of paid youth workers aged 15 to 18 supports the daily operations of the Candover Valley Community Store. Their work goes beyond simple shifts, they play an essential role in the wellbeing of our community.

From stocking shelves and operating the ProEPOS till system to greeting customers with friendliness, these young team members are gaining valuable practical skills, building confidence, and making meaningful contributions to village life. Their enthusiasm, dependability, and positive attitude are invaluable assets to both the store and the community we serve.

International Youth Day is a global celebration of the potential, passion, and impact of young people. This year's theme emphasises empowering youth to engage actively within their communities. Our local youth workers exemplify this message through their dedication and responsibility. Their efforts demonstrate that even in a small rural setting, young people can make a significant and lasting difference.

This September, we will be sad to bid farewell to some team members as they progress to higher education. We wish them all the best in their future endeavours and look forward to celebrating their continued successes.

We're not currently recruiting new youth workers due to a strong existing team, however, we do have a waiting list, and we'd always love to hear from anyone who's interested in future opportunities. Feel free to get in touch via email at hello@cvcs.org.uk.

Brooching the Subject.

The summer is well and truly here and the excavations of the Romano British building at Stanchester are about to begin once more. In light of this it was a real coincidence that I happened to find a brooch dating from that time during a very recent trip to the fields in the heart of the village.

Although there are rare finds of buttons and some toggles pre-dating the Roman Conquest, brooches appear to have been the popular form of fastening for ordinary Romans. They were an extremely important part of dress and were most likely used to secure outer garments. They were usually die cast from a form of copper alloy and using a two-part clay mould and worked by attaching a sprung or hinged pin to the cast piece to create a safety pin-esque mechanism. This proved very successful, evidenced by the fact that we are using the same technology two thousand years later! It's worth remembering however that metal itself was a premium product for much of history, and poorer Romans would have made do with simple bone or wooden fastenings.

Whilst brooches were chiefly functional items they were usually decorated. Humans before and since have used jewellery as a way to express status and personality, and the Romans of the Candover Valley were no different. There are a mind-boggling number of types and subsets, all with different features. Two local examples I have found are both classed as 'La Tène III', popular in the 1st century AD and showing clear elements of Celtic design. The name of this brooch type is derived from an important salt production site in Switzerland, the style likely finding its way to the UK with population movements due to trade or population movement at or before the time of invasion.

Brooches could be long in design, take the form of an animal, could be flat, were often enamelled, and some intricately decorated in many colours. My recent find is known as a 'Hod Hill' type which is widely thought to have been affiliated with the Roman Army during and after the Conquest. Cast in bronze, its wearer would definitely have looked the part.

The Hod Hill brooch found recently

Let us stop for a moment to consider what was happening all those years ago. Perhaps an individual walking towards the village from the Stanchester villa, perhaps a soldier passing through? Maybe the day was warming up – a nice opportunity for a quick break, cloak off. Did our individual gather their cloak up and take it back home before realising the loss of their brooch? Alternatively, was it a chilly day, cloak wrapped round tightly. The brooch pin breaks and the plate lost in the grass. The start of its two thousand year wait to be found. A nuisance perhaps, but, an opportunity to acquire the latest design. I hope they chose well!

On the Farm— Ben Robinson

Every year before harvest Hampshire NFU organises a free Health and Safety training day for farmers and farm staff. This year 150 people attended, and it proved a useful refresher before the busy arable season kicks off. There are various stations and sessions that attendees move round covering issues such as fire safety, first aid, coming into contact with a live electric wire, working from height and livestock handling. Health and Safety is often met with a groan. However, in farming it really matters. You are 21 times more likely to die at work as a farmer or farm worker than in the UK average workplace. Only deep sea trawermen have a worse rate of occupational fatality.

There are many reasons for this, many of which a risk assessment and a Hi-Viz jacket won't do much to help. There are the weather pressures, lone working, the long hours, the unpredictable livestock and the potentially dangerous machinery. These can be mitigated to an extent by good planning and maintenance.

However, farming is virtually unique in the modern economy that industrial buildings are built around family homes. Nowadays any remaining industry in urban areas is tucked away on industrial estates, well separated from housing. Most farms have precious little delineation between where 'home' starts, and 'workplace' begins. This can make children vulnerable once they get to the age that they want to start exploring. Though we have some strong fencing to keep them in the garden and away from the yard, farm safety is a constant worry here with our three- and one-year old boys.

Despite this it is the elderly who are most at risk on farms. Many farmers don't quite know when the time has come to hang up their boots and thus keep plodding on years and even decades beyond what most would call a normal retirement age. It is easy to do when you live by the yard. However, dodging the bull, climbing the ladder or setting up machinery is a little harder to do when you are in your 80s than in your 20s and 30s. Sadly the injury and fatality statistics back this up. It is the old and young who are most likely to come to harm on our farms.

As I write the dry spell stretching back to March has just broken. The sheep have done fairly well in it and we have just about managed to keep enough grass in front of them. Sheep generally enjoy a dry time as they are less affected by worms, fluke and other internal parasites. The lamb price has so far remained high and indeed has strengthened as the summer has progressed. I am hoping the market for sheep meat remains strong as it certainly won't be the grain price powering the business forward this year.
